Seeing colour: Investigate how light enables us to see colours. First, read/research about Newton's discovery about light. Your challenge is to use your knowledge of light, colour and filters to create a secret message! The message should be impossible to read unless you look at it through a coloured filter. Your task To write a secret message. Use a light blue colouring pen or pencil to write your message in a blank paper. Then use orange, pink, red and yellow pens or pencils to colour a pattern around it, hiding the message from the view. Your family member should be able to decode the message by looking at it through a red filter.   	Design a War time propaganda poster. Have a think about what message a government might want to convey to its people during a major conflict – it could be something to raise people's spirits, help them to stay safe, or persuade them to fight. You can use a variety of resources to help you make this: colour pencils, felt tips, paints, watercolours, crayons; to present one of those messages in a way that would capture people's attention. Remember to send your works of Art to apsallstars@alexandra.hounslow.sch.uk   	Understanding how WWII affected the everyday lives of women. Research about all the different roles that women had during WW2. Think about how the government at the time used posters to recruit women to the war effort. http://www.primaryhomeworkhelp.co.uk/war/women.htm Scroll down to the bottom of this file and look at the different WW2 posters. Can you guess what the message is in each poster? Using your critical thinking and literacy skills analyse whether the posters would have been effective at attracting the attention of women. Have a look at: font size, body language of figures, look in eyes of figures, colour etc. Write down what each feature is trying to convey to the onlooker. Next, mark each poster out of 6 for its persuasiveness. Extension: Re-write the wording for one of the posters you gave a low score. Can you make the poster more persuasive?
